

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A plurality of fixed form programs used to create a processing program are stored. The fixed form programs include undefined data portions respectively. One fixed form program is selected, and data is key-inputted to the undefined data portion included in the fixed form program. Consequently, the processing program using the fixed form program to be used for a numerical control device is created.